

Wagga Iron Foundry

Heritage Tables Catalogue

Traditional cast iron tables made in foundries during the last century exist in many Australian settings today. We are well known for our range of heritage iron castings. Tables in this catalogue have been chosen to be useful and to suit your gardens, verandas and courtyards.

Metal

Castings of our entire range of furniture are of ductile iron, which is not brittle like grey iron. This means that your Wagga ductile iron furniture will remain as an heirloom for generations. Imported furniture castings mostly are of grey iron. For reasons of safety we do not weld broken grey iron.

Paint

The tables are undercoated with two coats of zinc phosphate primer of different colours. This is to show any incomplete coverage. If fully painted castings are required in addition we apply two coats of enamel paint.

Timber tops

Spotted Gum is used for tabletops. It is an Australian hardwood best suited for outdoor use. Teak or other exotic species are available if ordered. Timbers are dressed with rounded edges. Three coats of lacquer are applied to all timbers unless otherwise required. Brass screws are used for assembling timbers and for securing timber tabletops to the cast iron bases.

Granite and Marble tops

Great care has been taken to select granite and marble tabletops that best enhance your castings. The granite is dressed locally. It shows green and black flecks across a white background. It has a lively appearance, ideal for garden settings. The marble is cut from slabs of deep sea green with streaks of black and cream throughout. It looks superb on veranda, courtyard and hallway tables. All the granite and marble pieces are about 20 mm thick, dressed with square edges.

Choice

On the following pages we list details of tables. If castings are bought without timber, we can provide details of the timber slats and fasteners that are required.
